Paul Finds A Home

By Gianna Acosta
Paul was a polar bear. He lived in Antarctica with his parents.
One day, his mom and dad were taking a swim and a big wave took them down.

Paul was sad so he traveled away on an iceberg.
Paul got to land and looked for food to eat. Nice people said, “Oh, he’s a cute polar bear. Let’s feed him some food.”

THANK YOU!
Later Paul arrived in Springfield, Missouri. He found a store and went inside. An employee picked up Paul and said “Hmmm, let’s put this polar bear into stock.” Soon Paul found himself on a shelf!
Days later a woman came. She was named Ms. Vi. She bought Paul and took him home and put him into a pretty bag, along with a book called Dear Zoo.
Paul was getting tired of being in a bag when all of a sudden he was pulled out by a girl. The girl hugged Paul and said "I'm Gianna. I'm going to take you home with me!" Paul was very happy!
At Gianna’s house Paul met his brothers and sisters (which consisted of owls and a baby triceratops). They all lived very happily together.

The End.
